

FREE GUIDE • DIET SWAD

Dadi Ki 5 Food Habits - Science Ne Haan Bol Di

The science behind grandmother's food rules - each habit explained, evidence-checked, and turned into one practical step for today

You unlocked this guide by commenting 'DADI' - thank you!

Ancient Wisdom, Modern Life

Diet Swad | Ancient Wisdom, Modern Life | FSSAI Lic. No. 22825041000300 | dietswad.in | @dietswad

What's inside

1. When science catches up with dadi
2. 1. Seasonal eating - 'jo mausam de, woh khao'
3. 2. Fermented foods - 'dahi ke bina thali adhoori'
4. 3. Ghee - 'ek chammach shakti ka'
5. 4. Cooking from scratch - 'apne haath ka khana'
6. 5. No mid-meal snacking - 'khaane ke beech kuch nahi'
7. The modern snack that fits the old rules

When science catches up with dadi

For decades, 'modern' eating meant moving away from traditional habits. Then research quietly started confirming what our grandmothers practised all along. This guide takes five of dadi's food rules, explains the science in plain words, and ends each one with a single 'bring it back today' step.

1. Seasonal eating - 'jo mausam de, woh khao'

The science: produce harvested in season and eaten soon after keeps more of its vitamins (nutrients degrade during long storage and transport). Rotating foods with the seasons also naturally diversifies your nutrition across the year - variety is one of the most agreed-upon principles in all of nutrition science.

Bring it back: once a week, buy whatever is cheapest and most plentiful at the local mandi - that's the season talking.

2. Fermented foods - 'dahi ke bina thali adhoori'

The science: fermented foods (dahi, chaas, kanji, idli-dosa batter) contain live cultures - probiotics. Research links a well-fed gut microbiome to better digestion, immunity, and even mood regulation. The gut makes many of the body's signalling chemicals - scientists literally call it the 'second brain'.

Bring it back: one bowl of plain dahi or one glass of chaas daily. Homemade beats flavoured packaged yogurt (which usually adds sugar, starch and colours).

3. Ghee - 'ek chammach shakti ka'

The science: vitamins A, D, E and K are fat-soluble - your body cannot absorb them without some fat present in the meal. A modest amount of ghee on dal or sabzi improves that absorption. Ghee is also a source of butyrate, a fat that gut-lining cells use for fuel. The key word everywhere: modest.

Bring it back: one small spoon on real, home-style food - not fried snacks 'because ghee is healthy now'. Context matters more than the ingredient.

4. Cooking from scratch - 'apne haath ka khana'

The science: the strongest research trend of the last decade links diets high in ultra-processed food (factory-made, long ingredient lists, additives) with weight gain and metabolic problems. Cooking from scratch is simply the most reliable way to keep additives, hidden sugar and cheap fats out.

Bring it back: pick two 'from scratch' dinners a week. Simple counts - khichdi is from scratch.

5. No mid-meal snacking - 'khaane ke beech kuch nahi'

The science: every time you eat, insulin (the hormone that moves sugar out of your blood into cells) goes to work. Constant grazing keeps insulin constantly raised; gaps between meals let it settle - which supports steady energy and healthy weight. Dadi's fixed meal times were accidental insulin management.

Bring it back: give your snack a fixed time slot (the 4-6 pm window is most people's real hunger). One planned, satisfying snack beats six unconscious nibbles.

The habit stack, in one line

Seasonal thali + daily dahi + a spoon of ghee + two scratch-cooked dinners + one fixed snack time. That is 80% of a dietitian's advice, in dadi's words.

The modern snack that fits the old rules

For the fixed snack slot

Diet Swad bites and cookies are built from dadi-approved ingredients - dates, nuts, seeds, millet flour, ghee, jaggery - with nothing artificial. A snack that fits habit #5 without breaking habits #1-4. ₹499, FREE shipping India-wide - dietswad.in.

Enjoyed this guide?

Follow @dietswad on Instagram for honest, no-jargon nutrition content in simple language, every single day. And when you want a snack whose label you never have to worry about - every Diet Swad product is ₹499 with FREE shipping all over India. Visit dietswad.in (link in bio).

This guide shares general nutrition information in simple language, prepared by the Diet Swad team. It is not medical advice. If you have a health condition, an allergy, or special dietary needs (pregnancy, diabetes, children under 2, etc.), please talk to your doctor or a qualified dietitian before making changes. All ingredient examples describe common label patterns, not any one specific brand.